Flowers for Valentines? Nix! They're Born to Blush Unseen For Police Sergeant and Wife

The Valentine family has made its last attempt to brighten the corner where they are—namely, the corner of Cricket Terrace and Rittenhouse Place in Ardmore.

Last year, Bruce Valentine, Lower Merion Township Police Sergeant, who lives at 20 Rittenhouse Place, planted a vegetable garden on the vacant lot which then occupied the corner. His crops were just about ready for harvest when the widening of Cricket Terrace was begun and the garden was plowed under.

After the widening, a small plot of vacant ground remained and Valentine's wife, Dorothy, thought she'd plant a few flowers there this summer. Once burned, twice shy, Sgt. Valentine warned her the plot was jinxed, but in went the zinnia seeds nonetheless.

Last week the flowers were on the verge of blooming. But water was leaking into the cellar of the house adjoining the would-be flower garden.

To correct the drainage condition, the township decided to build up the ground by dumping eight truckloads of dirt . . .

Right on Mrs. Valentine's zinnias.

Autocar Workers Get Vacation

Plant Will Close for 2 Weeks; Increase Effective

All employees of the Autocar Co. will stop work for the next two weeks for a plant-wide vacation with pay, a custom believed to be unique in the automotive industry.

The plant will be closed down, in order that all employees may have their vacations at the same time. Work will be resumed on Monday, August 23.

John "Firpo" Arroyo, president of Local 131, UAW-CIO, praised the action of the company officials in arranging the vacation period, and predicted a continuation of good relationships between the company and its employees.

The wage agreement, calling for an increase of 11 cents an hour to all employees, and 5 cents an hour additional to skilled maintenance workers for "correction of inequities," was signed Monday. At the same time, it was incorporated in the contract between the company and the union.

Arroyo and his negotiating committee signed for the local and Adolph Gelpke, vice president in charge of production, and his committee, for the company. George Kampf signed on behalf of the international executive committee of the union.

Workers will get their first increased wages in their pay envelopes covering the period starting August 2. They will receive additional pay, making the increase retroactive to June 22, later.

St. Davids Man Held Under Bail

Charged With Hit-Run By Kirklyn Cousins

Robert Harrison, of St. Davids, was held under $400 bail for Delaware County Court on a hit-run charge at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Roy Blackburn, in Llanerch, last Thursday night.

Harrison was arrested late last Wednesday night by Haverford Township police on a warrant sworn out against him by two Kirklyn boys who a few hours earlier had been arrested by Lower Merion police on a charge of disorderly conduct brought against them by Harrison.

At the hearing, Benjamin Amadio, 27, and his cousin, Edmund Donofrio, 25, testified that Harrison sideswiped their automobile as Amadio was driving east on Haverford Road, Bryn Mawr, and failed to stop.

They said they chased Harrison to his mother's home in the Red Leaf Apartments, Wynnewood, where they asked him what he was going to do about the damages to Amadio's car.

"He said he didn't know anything about it," Amadio testified, "and then he took a punch at me." Amadio, who lost his right leg while serving with the Army Air Force during the war, said he lost his balance and fell forward on Harrison, and that his cousin then stepped between them. He said he did not strike Harrison.

Donofrio also told Judge Blackburn that he had not struck the St. Davids man.

However, they said, Harrison swore out a warrant against them charging them with disorderly conduct, and at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Joseph B. Allen, Jr., testified that they had struck him, bruising his head and tearing his shirt.

Ardmore Infant Smothers in Bed

Week's Old Baby Found Dead Sunday

Susan Mungall, nine weeks old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Mungall, Jr., of the Argyle Court Apartments, Argyle Rd., and Linwood Ave., Ardmore, was found dead of suffocation in bed an hour after her mother had given her a bottle feeding on Sunday evening.

An autopsy performed by Montgomery County Coroner Winslow J. Rushong, Monday evening, attributed the death to accidental suffocation.

Mr. and Mrs. Mungall had taken their baby daughter for a visit to her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Mungall, Sr., of 207 Curwen Rd., Rosemont, earlier in the afternoon.

At 4 o'clock the mother gave the infant a bottle feeding in the upstairs room of the home and placed her on the bed. When she returned to the room about an hour later she found the child lying on its face.

Artifical respiration was applied by the father and the Bryn Mawr ambulance was called. Dr. Samuel M. Peacock, Jr., was summoned from his nearby home and pronounced the baby dead after efforts to revive her failed.

Mr. Mungall is an attorney with Stradley Ronon Stevens and Young, Attorneys, 122 Real Estate Trust Building, Philadelphia.

New Truck and Auto Routes Needed Soon To Prevent Hopeless Traffic Bottleneck

Rosengarten Says Present Highways to City Are Overtaxed; Urges Building of Feeder Roads From End of the Proposed Turnpike Extension

A hopeless traffic bottleneck in Ardmore and Bryn Mawr was predicted by Walter E. Rosengarten, Lower Merion Township engineer, Friday, if new truck and auto routes into Philadelphia are not provided in the near future.

"Montgomery and Lancaster Aves. and Haverford Rd. are already overtaxed," he told State and city highway officials at a meeting called by the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce to discuss methods of routing traffic to Philadelphia from the eastern terminus of the Pennsylvania Turnpike at King of Prussia.

"Lower Merion Township is now pounded to death from both directions," he said. "Our highways cannot take it. People who are trying to get through the township cannot do it as they have a right to do.

"Unless the congestion is relieved it will be the ruination of parts of Ardmore and Bryn Mawr."

Urging the construction of feeder highways from King of Prussia to Philadelphia, he said the proposed route along River Rd. and West River Drive would be ideal for passenger traffic into the heart of Philadelphia.

Such a move, he said, would not detract from the business in the commercial areas along Lancaster and Montgomery Aves., now overburdened with through truck and auto traffic. "The belief that main arteries must run through the business areas is a fallacy," he said.

He also cited the proposed feeder route to the south as highly desirable for truck traffic to South Philadelphia and Dock St. As proposed now, this route would cut off at Malvern, run through Haverford Township along the old Pennsylvania Railroad right of way, on through Delaware County, across the Passayunk Ave. Bridge and into South Philadelphia.

He said it would be far more desirable to construct the proposed new feeder routes than to take the alternative and reconstruct and widen the roads now in use.

T. J. Evans, chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, told the highway officials that the eastern extension from outside Harrisburg to King of Prussia is scheduled for completion by September, 1950, a year earlier than originally planned.

A state highway official in turn stated yesterday that in view of the shorter road length of the feeder routes, they would undoubtedly be completed even before that of the extension.

He added, however, that none of the proposed feeder routes are yet true routes because until the terminus point, now defined as "in the vicinity of King of Prussia," is definitely located, the feeder routes cannot be accurately plotted.

In a statement released Tuesday, the Turnpike Commission disclosed a tentative agreement to charge motorists one cent a mile for the use of the Philadelphia extension to the super-highway.

The toll on the present 160-mile road from Irwin, Westmoreland County, to Middlesex, Cumberland County, is $1.50 for passenger cars. Under the proposed rate schedule, a motorist would pay $2.50 for a trip from Irwin to the new terminus point near King of Prussia. The eastern link will stretch 100 miles.

The Turnpike Commission is also preparing plans to float a $134,000,000 bond issue to construct and finance the extension and to refund the outstanding bonds.

According to Commission Chairman Evans, the Eastern extension will probably double the Turnpike's operating revenues. Current revenues are approximately $5,000,000 annually, and Evans predicted that when the Philadelphia link is completed the receipts would reach $10,000,000.

The Llanerch youngster, who completed the fourth grade at Llanerch School in June, became ill Saturday and was taken to Municipal Hospital, Philadelphia, the following night when her illness was diagnosed as polio. According to hospital authorities her case is a severe one and she is in serious condition.

Ruth has two brothers, Thomas E., Jr., 19, and William P., 12. Her father is manager of the American Express Company's Philadelphia branch office.

The other two polio victims in Haverford Township are both in Fitzgerald-Mercy Hospital with mild cases, according to the local Board of Health.

The Rivas child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rivas, was taken to the hospital Friday morning after becoming ill the preceding evening. Reported in fair condition, he has a sister, Nancy 5, and two brothers, Towley, 6, and Alfred, two and a half. His father is associated with the Koenig-Rivas Typesetting Co., Philadelphia.

Deschanel, a mechanical engineer, was stricken July 26 and taken to the hospital Sunday. He and his wife have two children, Diane, five and a half, and Caleb, four.

The three above cases bring Haverford Township's total to four polio cases so far this year. Last year there were 13. Lower Merion Township has had four polio victims to date.

Cynwyd Man Held Under $1500 Bail

Wm. Vent Charged With Fraudulent Conversion

William O. Vent, 66, of Rockhill Rd., near Harvard Rd., Cynwyd, last week was held under $1500 bail for Philadelphia Grand Jury on fraudulent conversion charges brought against him by a business associate, James F. Carrol, of Philadelphia.

Appearing before Magistrate Nathan A. Beifel, in Philadelphia, Vent waived the hearing and bail was set with consent of his and Carrol's attorneys and the District Attorney's office.

Carrol's attorney, Irving Katz, told Beifel that Carrol had had numerous transactions with Vent and had built up confidence in him over a period of years. He said Carrol had entered into a voluntary agreement with Vent and had turned over to him securities and real estate valued at $57,000, with the understanding that the assets were not to be invested without the express permission of Carrol.

Katz charged, however, that the bulk of the money had been invested without Carrol's consent in the Penn Bar Corp., a machine shop firm which Vent allegedly controlled.

"When we called on Mr. Vent to produce some assets there was nothing left," Katz stated.

Vent's attorney, Horace M. Barba, interjected that $57,000 "is a considerable exaggeration of the sum involved," but when questioned by Beifel as to the exact amount, placed it at $50,000.

Barba said that for the record it should be stated that "for every dollar Carrol invested in Penn Bar Corp., Vent invested two."

Salary Boosts For County Aids Listed Tuesday

May Be Last Raises For Next Two Years Commissioners Warn

About 550 employees of Montgomery County will receive cost of living salary increases ranging between $60 and $300 a year, it was announced Tuesday by the county commissioners.

At the same time, the commissioners warned that this may be the last salary boost for the next two years. In a letter sent to all employees, they said: "Since establishing the 1948 salary schedule on March 16, cost of living has continued to rise.

"We believe that the peak of the cost of living has nearly reached the top and these salary adjustments will extend through 1948, and it may be that they will be the final adjustment of all salaries as they refer to the respective positions."

The commissioners also pointed out that the increases were made possible without undue strain on the treasury because the personal property tax was at least $100,000 more than had been estimated.

Representing an overall increase of between six and seven percent, the raises were approved at a meeting of the salary board and a conference with office holders and judges.

Retroactive to August 1 was a raise of .25 cents a day (from $5.75 to $6) for per diem workers at the Court House, and a base pay boost ranging from three to ten cents an hour for road workers employed in the highway department.

The increases for salaried employees were made retroactive to March 16 of this year when all workers making less than $2800 a year received $120-a-year raises.

The new salary increases for these workers include $180 for all in the $2800 and under class who participated in the March 16 raise, while, for the most part, those who did not get a raise last March because their compensation was higher, will receive $300.

THINKING OUT LOUD

Copyright 1948 by CHARLES A. WRIGHT

"Pittsburgh, Here We Come!"

Well, everything seems settled. Unless something comes up to change our plans, we shall leave Saturday for Rochester. There we will join our friends the Bakers for the rest of the trip to Pittsburgh. That seems a long way around to get to Pittsburgh, but it's typical of our vacation trips.

On one trip,to get to Hagerstown, we drove down the Skyline Drive and Shenandoah Valley, then cut across Tennessee and North Carolina, visited Wiliamsburg, Va., and Washington D. C., and back tracked to Hagerstown. And on another occasion, to get to Chicago, we drove north to Rochester, south to Grove City., Pa., west to Indianapolis, and northwest to Chicago, with a few little side trips on the way.

◆ ◆ ◆

The eventual objective of these trips is the annual convention of the Elbeetian Legion, an organization of old-time Lone Scouts, but whenever the convention city has seemed too close we have studied the road maps and worked in a lot of extra scenery on the way. To show our inconsistency, however, when last year's convention was held at Denver, we decided that was too far away and missed a convention for the first time since 1935.

◆ ◆ ◆

The trips followed a regular pattern. Invariably we picked up the Merlins, of Hudson Heights, N. J., and usually routed the trip through Rochester so the Bakers could join us with their car. Invariably before we were back home we said we would never take a trip like that again. And invariably the following Spring we began laying plans for another trip.

When we made the first trip, Charles Merlin, Jr., was just seven weeks old and rode in a little hammock strung from the top of the car. Later little Charles became the only one who always wanted a drink, his thirst seizing him shortly after we had left a service station and becoming more insistent until we made the next stop. But now he is of age where he is likely to be having an eye out for the pretty young girls at the convention.

For a number of years, Betsy IV carried four Merlins and four Wrights until we joined the Bakers and some of the passengers could move to their car. On the way back, the Bakers usually headed straight for Rochester, so Betsy IV again had to carry the full load of Merlins and Wrights. It was just as well that as the children grew larger, one or the other of them decided not to make the trip, thus allowing a bit more space for those who went.

This year's trip won't seem quite the same because it's the first we've made since we sold Betsy IV. Pittsburgh, the convention city, is handy enough for us, so that we could make the trip by train or bus, but we hated the idea and wondered if we should bother. We planned our vacations for the convention week, but kept postponing the decision as to whether or not we should go, and if so, how.

✦ ✦ ✦

We knew the Merlins would go, because Charlie founded the Elbeetian Legion and the convention couldn't get along without him. But we weren't sure if the Bakers would go and we got to thinking that if they didn't go we wouldn't go either.

✦ ✦ ✦

"It would be a nice trip by car and with all the gang," the Little Woman said, "but I'd hate to go out by train or bus." That put a brilliant idea into our heads. We wrote to the Bakers, saying that we certainly hoped they were going because if they weren't going we didn't want to go either. And we said how unfortunate it was that we had sold Betsy IV because it wouldn't seem right to go by bus. And being very hospitable, we said we hoped they would come and pay us a visit some time soon.

✦ ✦ ✦

That turned the trick, just as we hoped it would. The Bakers wrote that they would love to pay us a visit, but it would have to be short because they were pushed for time. So if it was all right with us, they would drive down from Rochester Tuesday, spend the night with us, and then drive us out to Pittsburgh on Wednesday in time for the convention.

✦ ✦ ✦

We showed the letter to the Little Woman, expecting her to be as pleased as we were. She was the one who hated buses. She was the one who would love to ride with the Bakers and confab with Mrs. Baker all the way. But she read it thoughtfully and then said, "That's awfully nice of them, and I'd love to have them visit us, but I hate to have them go so far out of their way to pick us up."

✦ ✦ ✦

We said we felt sure they would not have made the suggestion unless they wanted to make the trip. And after all, what was a few hunderd miles more or less when you have a car? We had gone that far out of our way to join the Bakers at Rochester on our past trips.

✦ ✦ ✦

"Another thing," the Little Woman continued, " if they do come here, I'm not going to have my kitchen looking this way. You've been talking all winter of painting it, but you haven't done a thing. It looks terrible."

✦ ✦ ✦

We know when we are licked and gave in gracefully. So we bought a new, wide paint brush and started mixing the paint, while the Little Woman sat down to write a letter to the Bakers. "What did you tell them," we inquired, after we had the first coat of paint on the wall. "Oh, I said that we'd be delighted to have them visit here, but it seemed a shame to bring them so far out of the way, and besides, we hadn't visited Rochester lately and maybe it would be a better idea if we took a bus to Rochester, spent a day or two there, and then went from Rochester to Pittsburgh with them."

✦ ✦ ✦

"But you're the one who hates buses," we protested. "Oh, it will be all right," the Little Woman replied. "Besides," we added, "we've already put on the first coat of paint in the kitchen." "Yes," she answered, "it looks nice. You ought to able to put on the second coat before we go away."

✦ ✦ ✦

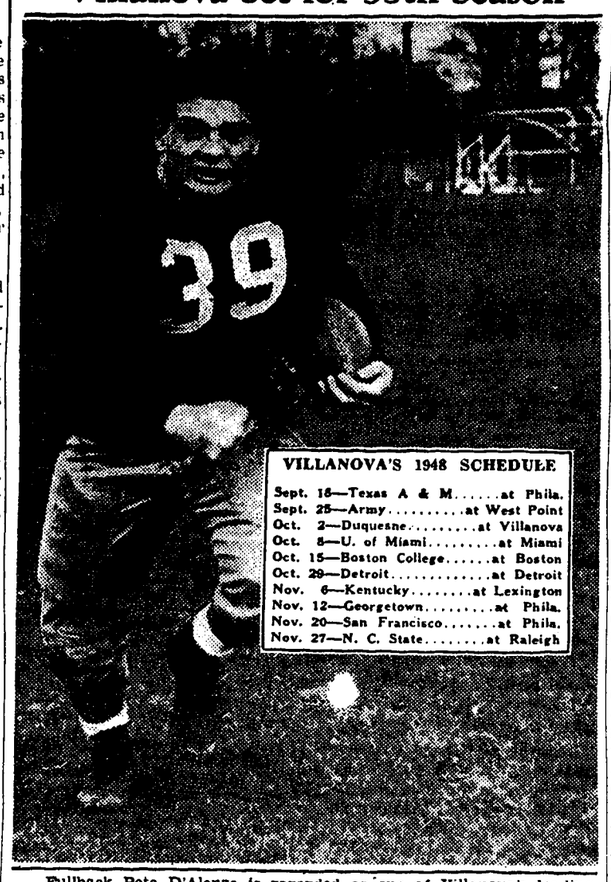

P. S.—The Bakers wrote down that they'll be delighted to have us visit them, so it's "Pittsburgh (via Rochester) here we come!" We're somewhat miffed about the whole thing and sorely tempted not to put on the second coat of paint, but knowing the ways of the Little Woman we might as well give in.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT:

Who Makes "All the Profit" On $1.90 Lb. Tenderloin Steak?

If you are looking for a man who makes an exorbitant profit when you pay $1.90 a pound for a slice of tenderloin steak, you won't find him behind the retail counter.

At least that is the contention of one food store owner and operator, and he willingly presents the figures to prove it. In fact, he contends that when he sells you a pound of tenderloin for $1.90, he actually loses money. Just the other day, this particular merchant bought a side of beef in his regular course of business. It weighed 300 pounds even, and he, the merchant, paid 6½ cents, or $184.50 for it.

His head meat cutter spent one hour and a half cutting it up and then he sold the tenderloin steak for $1.90 a pound, the club steaks for $1.40 a pound, the rump steaks for $1.20 a pound, and the round steaks for $1 a pound. For the roll rib he got $1 a pound, for the brisket roll, 83 cents; for the chuck roast, 73 cents; for the bolar roast, $1.05; for the ground beef, 65 cents; for the cube beef, 83 cents; for the rolled shoulder, 83 cents; for the plate rib, 43 cents; for the short rib, 49 cents; for the fat, 11 cents, and for the bones, two cents a pound.

For the 125-pound hind quarter at these prices he received: for the flank, $4.10; for the hangar, 93 cents; for the round with flank off, including hamburg, fat and bones, $45.78; for the rump, $22.14, and for the short loin, $20.48, or a grand total of $93.43.

For the front quarter, which weighed 175 lbs., he received: for rib, $23.20; for plate, $14.24; for brisket, $14.95; for shoulder, $18.24; for chuck, $41.28; or a grand total of $111.90.

For the whole side at the above high prices he received a total of $205.33 which is exactly $20.83 more than he paid for it, or 11.21 percent. Out of this $20.83, he pointed out, must come the wages of his meat cutter, the rent of the store, the cost of heat, light and all the other numerous incidental expenses that are a part of the business of keeping a store, before he has any profit for himself.

The fact is, he claims, that the cost of selling that side of beef was much more than the amount he realized above the cost, so that he came out of the transaction in a hole. In other words, if he did not sell some other things on which he is able to realize a reasonable profit, he would not be able to stay in business, and this transaction is typical.

The particular point of interest in this write-up, from the exact figures given, and checked with two leading meat stores in the township, as well as with a store in Chester County, is that of 11.21 percent profit. While the prices may vary a trifle in some particular cuts of beef, the fact remains that the 11.21 percent profit is about the same in every meat department. So, according to these figures, if you are determined to find the profiteer, if any, in this meat business, you will have to seek a bit further than your butcher or any retailer of meats.

Breaks Leg in Ball Game

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The So-Called Progressive Party

A brand new political party was born just a short time ago in nearby Philadelphia. Just what is in store for it none but one gifted with exceptional forsight could say or be willing to say. Unfortunately all the mystics and soothsayers are enrolled with Henry Agard Wallace in his new party, so surely the secret remains with them alone.

It is a very difficult task for an outsider to gauge the actual strength of such an organziation as that which is backing Mr. Wallace and his entire program. We have tried and succeeded many times during the past few days to discuss the candidate, the party and the platform they represent with quite of few people, and we find some of his most ardent followers come from many walks of life.

Men and Women who would be classed as conservatives and who previously steered far away from anything which had even a slight resemblance to radicalism, they are today ardent followers of Wallace and his peculiar—and they are peculiar—isms. Some of them, we find, are today living on "Spoils of capitolism," yet they grow enthusiastic when they talk of the Wallace Plan, which if adopted, would wipe out capitalism as we know it in the United States.

During the past several days we have discussed the Wallace program with ministers of the Gospel who seem to think there is nothing in the fact that numbered among the Wallace followers are many who are as Godless as Stalin and his satellites. There are numerous Negroes who accept Wallace because of the things he promises, rather than because of the things he has done, and there are quite a few Labor leaders who actually believe that Henry Agard Wallace will aid their cause in labor disputes, etc.

Despite all the promises in the Progressive Party's platform, Mr. Wallace and his followers could not bring to pass all the things they intend to do. I fear very much they would soon discover that in doing something they have promised to one group, they would be taking away something another group has and wants to keep. Despite all the lovely names by which they call their program and the awful names they call all the people who do not agree with them, Wallace and his crowd definitely are offering a sugarcoated dose of Soviet medicine, and in the end it will amount to Communism no matter what they try to call it.

As we sat and listened to a major part of the Progressive convention, listening to the different speakers, there came to our mind a line of old Christain hymn—"the hopes and fears of all the years." Here, it seemed to us, was the direct answer to this big assembly of so many different kinds of people with so many varied ideas.

Perhaps, we thought, in many of them there was a feeling of frustration; with some it perhaps might be a case of hope deferred that makes one sick at heart. Others perhaps, have long held onto dreams which they really believe some day will come true; then again, some may have felt that conditions as they exist today have kept them in bondage and they long and hope for the day when they can break their chains.

Here, it seems to these people, is an opportunity to join with others in a protest against things or conditions as they exist today. So nearing the clarion call of Mr. Wallace, they have hastened to follow him. It possibly has never occured to them that he might turn out to be a Pied Piper and finally lead them to their destruction. One need only study the various types and groups which make up the Wallace following to fully realize that perhaps some of them if given the proper amount of power they demand would be even more cruel, more heartless in their treatment of the people of this country, even the majority of the peopie than any majority group ever dared to be in its treatment of minorities.

Bear this in mind: People need not have a majority to control a nation. For instance, Communists in Russia and in other countries which they today dominate, make up only a small minority of the population.

But this minority rules with a hand of iron. And a minority tied together with nothing more in common than a single leader like Henry Agard Wallace could rule with a hand of iron, and I feel he not only could but would with such a minority.

Think well; think often before you get on the Wallace wagon. Now my fellow Amercans, is the time to let the world know we are a united people, standing firm on the rock bottom principles of our constitution, a peace-loving, a God-fearing people that stand for right and justice for all.

NARBERTH TOSSERS SEEK 9TH IN ROW AT EXPENSE OF MANOA ON SATURDAY

By HARRY ELLSWORTH

Some nifty left-handed pitching by Jack Creany plus an assist from the weatherman shoved Narberth into undisputed possession of first place in the Main Line League over the weekend.

The Boroughites nipped Clifton Heights, 6-3, behind Creany to jump a half a game ahead of the idle Media Main Liners. Media had no chance to do anything about it, for Sunday's downpour cancelled the entire Main Line diamond card.

Manoa stayed in the thick of things by clubbing Glenolden, 9-4, to pull within a half game of second place. Tom Grace had one of his good days, scattering nine hits as Gil Gekoski got "four for four" for the winners.

Both Media and Narberth are in action this weekend. Media entertains Wayne, the fourth-place team, on Saturday and travels to Glenolden to play the fifth-place Stars on Sunday.

Narberth, hopeful of extending its eight-game winning streak, meets a tough customer in Manoa at the Narberth field on Saturday. Jack Creany will probably hurl for the Davismen, with Millard Robinson or undefeated Nick DiFranks twirling for Manoa.

On Sunday, Narberth has a relative breather, meeting in-and-out Ardmore at Ardmore. Manoa is idle on Sunday.

The remaining games find neighborhod rivals Glenolden and Clifton Heights meeting at Clifton Heights on Saturday, and the Wayne Italian - Americans entertaining the Heighters on Sunday at Wayne.

Although he has been very lenient with hits, Jack Creany, of Narberth, has compiled a 6 and 2 record for the pennant contenders. Creany won eight in a row for Drexel Hill last year.

College Whirl

Dear Dottie,

I came out on the 5:16 Paoli Local today, and had a wonderful long chat with Walt Sparks, whom I hadn't seen in years. Walt, who graduated from Lower Merion in 1936 and Princeton in 1940, will finish up at the Penn Law School in December of this year. He worked for a year and then spent 54 months in the Navy, ending up as a Lieutenant Commander, in between. He has a summer job recoding the investment power in trusts administered by the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Company which keeps him busy during the week, and after a quick round of golf every Saturday morning at the Plymouth Country Club, he's off to Brigantine to spend each weekend.

Walt, who seems to enjoy his job even if he is opposed to work on general principles, told me of an amusing incident which happened today at the Fidelity. It seems that there is another boy working with Walt who is a student at the Yale Law School. This boy and Walt were chatting with their secretary when she happened to say to the other boy: "You're up at Harvard Law School, aren't you?" Like a true Yale man, he fixed the poor girl with a baleful eye while Walt told her that that was the worst blunder she could possibly make. The girl was confused, and didn't seem to know quite what she had said wrong. "Yale and Harvard are bitter rivals," said Walt, trying to explain. "Oh," she said, comprehension flashing across her face. "I see. Like Abington and Cheltenham." Walt says that his Yale friend was too weak to do anything for the rest of the day.

Two local girls will be celebrating the end of school this weekend. Post-debs Lana Holliday and June Eastwick have been attending a summer school at Temple University's Oak Lane Country Day School, where they presumably have been learning how to become school teachers. Half their time was spent being lectured on the art of pedagogy, while during the other half they practice their knowledge on children attending the Oak Lane school. Oak Lane is apparently a quite progressive school, where the children are allowed to do anything they want to do and are never, never to be reprimanded or told they cannot do something. I don't know what Lana and June think but I suspect it's likely to make spoiled brats out of the kids.

One of the features of the Olympic program in England is the exhibition lacrosse matches, in which Dick Powell, formerly a star athlete at Lower Merion, is playing an outstanding part. Dick is a member of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute lacrosse team which is touring Europe as the official representative of the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association. In the R.P.I team's first game, Dick scored four goals as the Americans trounced the University of Manchester, 17-0.

Have you heard about the beautiful new Studebaker in which Nancy Bean has been driving recently? Nancy, who will be one of the prettiest girls at Penn when she goes back next year for her sophomore year, is working for the summer at the General Accident Company. She spends her lunch hours playing bridge with several of her Kappa Alpha Theta sorority sisters who are working at the same place.

Got a very welcome lift from Strafford to Ardmore the other night with Dave Clark, who had just come up from Stone Harbor, where his family spent the month of July. He said he wouldn't be around for long, since his popular sister, Ruthanne, his parents, and he were about to go to the Poconos for the month of August. He'll be a junior at Princeton when he goes back in the fall.

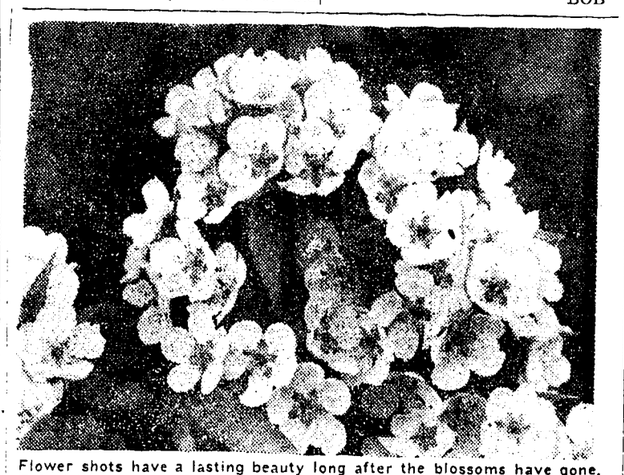

Stopped into the Golf Manor Inn last Saturday night and was quite surprised to see Sandy West shooting a game of darts with Charlie Wolferth. Sandy just happened to feel in the mood for a coatless, tieless evening, he said. He's working in the operating room at a local hospital for the summer.

You'd die if I told you which one of your girl friends this happened to, but one of them went to a dance with a well-known Main Line stag recently, and was a little surprised when he suggested that she leave her coat in the car. Seems that it would have cost ten cents to check the coat inside.

Give my regards to the gang at Bay Head.

Love,

BOB

Flower shots have a lasting beauty long after the blossoms have gone. This delicate picture of pear blossoms was made by Phillip Gendrau with a Speed Graphic.

FLOWERS ARE GOOD PICTURE SUBJECTS

There are no more beautiful natural subjects for either color or black-and-white photography than flowers in bloom. You can photograph pictorial studies of whole gardens, use flowers as a background for portraits and informal shots of people or shoot close-ups of individual sprays and blossoms for their beauty of form and detail.

Except for close-up shots, you need no special equipment. If your camera is equipped with double-extension bellows you can easily make life-sized copies of small flowers, while most other cameras can be fitted with accessory slip-on lenses that enable you to focus on objects a few inches from the camera.

For close-up work lighting is most important. Flowers with great texture and detail look their best in strong cross-lighting, while more delicate, translucent blossoms are most interesting with back-lighting shining through them.

Just as a jeweler will feature one beautiful gem on a large square of velvet, the simplest flower pictures are usually the most effective. One spray of apple blossoms against the sky, an extreme close-up of one iris bloom is far more dramatic than a cluttered shot with many details competing for attention.

In black-and-white pictures of flowers, filters can often be put to good use to heighten the contrast between colors which normally photograph much the same. To determine which filter to use, remember that one of a given color makes objects of that color photograph lighter and complimentary colors appear darker. Thus a blue filter will render greens and blues lighter and reds darker. Don't forget to lengthen your exposure the amount indicated for the filter.

There's Only One Secret To Success as Manager

None of us knows Eddie Sawyer very well yet, and certainly we will not know much about his methods and tactics as a manager until we have watched him through the rest of this season ,at least. But every guy is entitled to start with a clean slate and an even break, and that Sawyer shall surely get from me.

Eddie is a chap you instinctively like from the beginning. He's a quiet sort off the field, listens more than he talks and it is not hard to understand why he has had success with youngsters. And that is why the Phillies promoted him through their farm system until he got the jackpot job

When it comes down to brass tacks, there is at the top. only one secret to being a successful big league manager—it is the ability of the manager to get the best out of his players that there is in them. Some have the gift and some don't.

ROBERT

After all, no man could have a chance for the job of managing a big league club—in fact, he couldn't even seriously apply for it—unless he knew the game, inside out. All big league managers — and nearly all minor league managers, for that matter—know the game. They all know the strategy, the percentage, what move to make in a given situation, and how to make the unorthodox move occasionally, in an attempt to catch the other sid. off guard.

Occasionally a big league manager will call for a play that looks silly to practiced eyes, but generally he can give a mighty sound argument for his flier, and show you why it might have succeeded. And even the best of them will disagree on certain plays.

THOSE WHO HAVE THE GIFT BECOME THE STANDOUTS

So when we accept the fact, as we must, that every big league manager knows his stuff, then it is obvious that there must be some other distinction between those who are tops and those who slip back into oblivion. Of course, it is a matter of handling men.

This is the gift Connie Mack and John McGraw had, that Miller Huggins had, and among those who seem to have it these days are Joe McCarthy, Billy Southworth, Burt Shotton, and Bucky Harris.

Nobody knows just what it is—in Shotton's case it is infinite patience, in McCarthy's, not at all the same—sometimes he seems almost belligerent toward his men. In Southworth's case, encouragement: in Bucky's, a sort of crispness of command that takes all responsibility for the result, and which inspires confidence.

One thing is sure—I never regarded any manager as much good if he didn't accept the responsibility for his moves, without hanging it on the players when things went wrong—and I never saw a ball player who felt differently. And the managers I have liked best took the blame even when they knew that it really belonged elsewhere.

As I said, we don't know what Sawyer's methods are. But he has been definitely successful in the minors, and there are kids making good on the Phillies now who got up here by playing their heads off for him.

If he is the right type, he may as well begin while he's comparatively young, 37, and get his system grounded. If it is good, it will endure, and that is what the Phils need.

They've had too many managers, enough to prove that a change in managers doesn't of itself imply improvement. What they need is a manager who will be so much a part of them you don't think of the Phillies without thinking of him. I hope Sawyer is that man.

Narberth Leads Court League

Narberth Warriors took undisputed possession of first place at Narberth Junior Basketball League teams resumed action this week. The Warriors, racking up their second straight win, defeated the Bombers by 36-33 as Skippy Thaw tallied 15 points.

Stock Cars to Compete At Langhorne Aug. 15

Even though regulation racing cars turn the long Langhorne oval in faster time than do the stock jobs, such as will race there August 15 in the 200-mile championship, the latter are far more dangerous, according to veteran driver Pepper Cunningham.

As long as cars are bunched, there is trouble, he claims,

Cub Scout League Teams Play Today

Penn Wynne 33 will play Merion 29 at Merion, Penn Wynne 155 will invade Ardmore 36's field and Narberts will play host to Ardmore 74 in Main Line Cub Scout League games today.

Pitcher Ronnie Greenleese gave up only two hits, while collecting four safeties including a home run—for Penn Wynne's winners.

Texas Ace to Join Warrior Courtmen

The Philadelphia Warriors have reached deep into the heart of Texas for their first college recruit for the 1948-49 season in the Basketball Association of America.

There's No Substitute for Newspaper Coverage

There are many forms of advertising — billboards, sound trucks, circulars, direct mail, radio and others; why is it that year after year newspaper advertising is preferred by so many advertisers, large and small.

It is because year after year newspaper advertising proves the most economical, most effective medium for those advertisers. And that, in turn, is because the newspaper goes into the homes of its readers as an invited guest, paid for in advance by the subscribers, who turn to it eagerly for its news and features as well as for the advertising messages of local merchants.

The Newspaper is a Force in the Community

Readers come to know that the newspaper is more than an advertising medium. It is a force in the community that keeps coming regularly through all seasons of the year. Through it the reader learns to know his community better and develops loyalties toward the community and its institutions. As a manifestation of this loyalty, he tends to give a large share of his patronage to concerns which advertise in his favorite newspaper.

The newspaper reaches all age groups. It reaches mother and dad, who make the principal decisions on purchases. It also reaches the youngsters, who often play a large part in influencing these decisions.

Newspaper advertising is economical. Usually it costs less, inch for inch and reader for reader, than other forms of advertising. In addition, it is more flexible, permitting the merchant to vary his advertising expenditures with the seasons. Its late deadlines permit advertising copy to be as up to the minute as the news itself.

Are you seeking more business? Before you commit yourself to an advertising program, be sure to learn what your newspaper can do for you.

CAMERA TOPICS

—by T. T. Holden*—

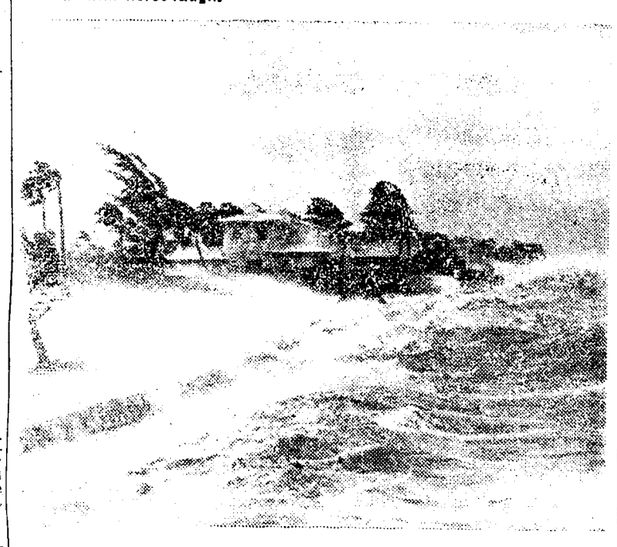

An interesting idea beautifully executed, this Speed Graphic photograph by Mal Vaughan is a typical prize candidate. Note how lighting, composition and the details of the hands contribute to a simple but heart-[illegible] story.

For stopping fast-action like this, a press camera cannot be beaten. Made by teen-ager Jack Menges with a Speed Graphic in 1/1000 sec. at f/8.

Second prize in the teen-agers group of the 1947 Graflex Photo Contest went to this shot by Alfred Regan because it is an unusual view of the old familiar horse-laugh.

CLOUDY DAYS FINE FOR MANY PICTURES

Don't be taken in by the old adage that good photographs can be made only on a bright sunny day. That was true years ago when films were very slow and time exposures were necessary for all pictures, but no longer.

Modern films and faster lenses make it easy to take pleasing pictures in almost any light conditions. And many types of pictures are actually better made without too bright sunshine. A cloudy, dull day is ideal for outdoor portraits for there is no glare to make your subject squint and contort his face. Also, there is no problem of balancing extreme contrasts between sunshine and shadows.

Many scenic pictures and "mood shots" are more dramatic when shot without benefit of sunlight. In pictures where detail is important, the absence of dark shadows is often an advantage on cloudy days.

Many photographers are beginning to realize that lovely color pictures can also be made on sunless days. Here, the slower emulsions make long exposures necessary, but unless the sky is black with overcast, some beautiful effects can be obtained at exposures of 1/10 to 1/25 second at f/3.5.

If you are traveling and can't wait for perfect days to shoot interesting scenes, don't hesitate a moment to try pictures in any weather. Even in the rain many prized effects are possible if you put your imagination to work. Puddles and wet streets offer wonderful reflective surfaces in which you will find many an interesting shot. Just make sure to keep your camera dry and give it a good toweling to remove dampness when you are finished shooting.

Next time a cloudy or rainy day has you bored, try a few experimental pictures of anything that looks interesting to you. You will probably be surprised and delighted with the results.

SPORTS CENE

By BOB JOHNSTON

Kenny Keehn, clubbing 21 hits in 48 attempts, is leading the Havertown A. A. baseball team in its pell-mell rush toward a near-perfect season, according to latest averages compiled by Ray Edelman, Sr.

Keehn currently is hitting at a .437 clip, with Ace Bell just five percentage points behind. Bell, bagging 16 hits in 37 tries, has a .432 record, as compared to .333 for Ray Edelman, Jr., Mike Basilio and Larry Aigeldinger. Only other member of Allie Cornog's crew in the .300 bracket is Walt Armstrong, who has whacked seven safeties in 23 trips to the plate for .304.

Speaking of batting averages, look and marvel at the healthy .450 mark boasted by Bob Poletti, of Manoa's Main Line League club. Poletti posted 18 hits and 13 runs in 40 times at bat, as compared to .433 for Nat Fuselli, of Ardmore.

The latter, in 42 times at bat, has collected 18 hits and 10 runs. Only a step behind in the Main Line League race for batting honors is Rayburn, of Clifton Heights, who has a .428 record with 12 hits in 28 attempts.

Meanwhile, Harry Ellsworth reports that Ardmore Lions, just getting in under the July 31 player limit, have signed diminutive Hub Smith, who previously pitched for the defunct Berwyn team, Hall, McCann, Watson and Calabrese.

Top M.L.L. pitchers are Dom Caniglia, of Media, and Manoa's Nick DeFranks. Each has registered four victories and has yet to taste defeat. However, Narberth's Jack Creany leads the league in wins with six even though he was set down twice.

Easy as Pie

THIS modern kitchen aid makes pie-making a comparatively easy job. No muss or fuss if you use this new pastry cloth. It is made of Bakelite polyethylene and is very easy to handle. Dough is placed between the two sheets of plastic and rolled to desired size; peel top film off; pick up dough on under sheet and place in pie-tin; peel bottom film off. Unused dough can be rolled out and stored between the sheets for future use. Rolling pin and pastry board remain clean as dough never touches them.

Know Your State

Every year millions of visitors are attracted to Pennsylvania by the fame of our State's rolling hills and sparkling waterfalls, its deep glens, and its 15 million acres of forest.

In two sections of our State, which were covered by glacial ice in remote ages, may be found hundreds of small lakes ieal for summer water sports. Along the ridge of uor Eastern mountains runs the long scenic pathway, known as the Appalachian trail. which extends from Maine to Georgia. In few places along its long track is it more attractive for a summer walking trip than in its slant down along the Blue Ridge into Maryland through Pennsylvania.

The nineteen State Parks of our Commonwealth provide many thousands of acres maintained and developed for the pleasure of our people. Among these parks one of the most interesting is the famous Wild Flower Preserve at Bowman's Hill in Bucks County, close to the spot where George Washington crossed the Delaware before the Battle of Trenton.

Five thousands seven hunderd miles of trout streams and three thousand eight hunderd miles of warm water fish streams, stocked each season by the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, wind through the wooded areas of the state. Pennsylvania wild life is protected by limited hunting seasons so that there are few expeditions into our hills that are not rewarded by the sight of deer, ring-necked pheasants, wild turkeys, or the numerous smaller woodfolk whose presence in Pennsylvania after so many years of civilization and industry is a tribute to the unceasing efforts for their conservation by the State Game Commission and the State's sportsmen's club.

The shores of Lake Erie in the Northwest provide all the pleasure of surf-bathing in the bracing fresh water of the Great Lakes. In the rugged wildness of the high plateau of Somerset County are large sections where the outdoor enthusiast may well imagine himself a month's journey from civilization. But, it is along the 40 thousands miles of state highways that most of us will take our summer trips into the woodlands of Pennsylvania. If we do so, the State Planning Board of the Department of Commerce reminds us of one important fact—a large percentage of the fires which have destroyed, over the years, nearly three million acres of Pennsylvania forests have been caused by matches and cigarettes thrown out of motor car windows and by camp fires left unextinguished on the edges of our woods.

Those of us who enjoy the beauties of nature must combine to conserve them, not only for the pleasure we have in the green landscape, of oaks and poplars, pines and hemlocks, but also because it is those forests which protect our State from danger of devastating floods and provides the material from which we must build and furnish our homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter McGee, of 238 Edgemont Ave., Ardmore, announce the birth of a daughter, on July 27, in Bryn Mawr Hospital.

This Week in History

Seventy-five years ago this week —August 1—the world's first cable car jerked up steep Clay St. in San Francisco. This ingenious vehicle was the invention of A. S. Halladie, of that city. Beneath the surface of the street, and between two car tracks, moved a heavy steel rope, powered by an engine in a distant building. The motorman of the car dropped a grip bar through a slot in the street. As the bar gripped the moving cable the cable car was pulled along. Horse-drawn public carriers became a thing of the past as American cities began installing cable car systems. Here was the first step in mechanizing urban transportation on city streets and to A. S. Halladie goes the credit!

Comedy Stars, Orchestra Slated at Steel Pier

With Olsen and Johnson to provide the merriment, and Woody Herman and his orchestra the bebop music, Steel Pier in Atlantic City will offer one of the biggest shows of the season during the week of August 8.

"Laffcade of 1948" is the name of the manical melange Olson and Johnson will present on the Music Hall stage throughout the week, the same zany show they scored so tremendously with in London. As if O. & J. weren't a show in themselves, they carry a cargo of assorted specialties and gagsters, among them the Clark brothers, Kate Murtah, Ben Yost's Vikings, J. C. Olsen, June Johnson, Michael Edwards, Billy Kay, Frank Cook, Maurice Millard, Shannon Dean and John Howes, Andy Ratousheff, Shorty Renna, the Six Mighty Adams and Frank Hart, to say nothing of a line of girls known as "the sixteen sexciting-Jet Propelled Broadway Lovelies."

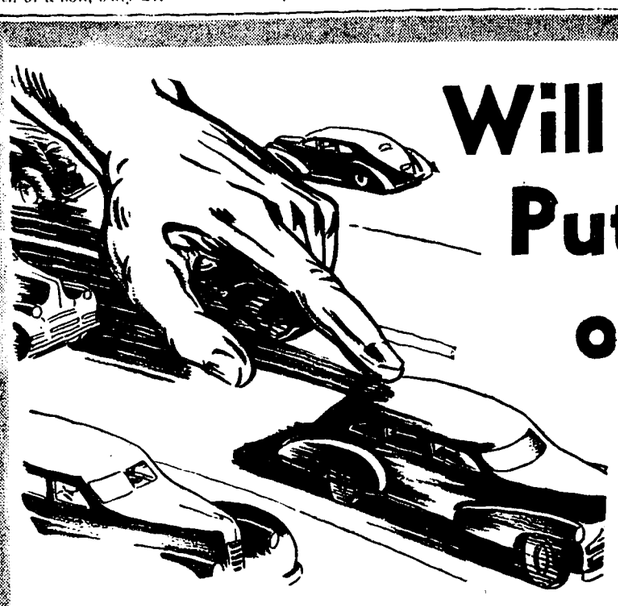

The old woodchopper Woody Herman will bring to the Marine Ballroom one of the greatest music sessions of the season. With the "Four Chips" and the "Woodchoppers" featured as the two bands within the Herman Herd, an evening of outstanding dancing and listening is guaranteed, and pier attendance records are bound to fall.

Hvd. Man Resigns As Treasurer of Pa. Hosp.

The Board of Managers of the Pennsylvania Hospital this week announced the resignations of John Lewis Evans, of Evans Lane, Haverford, as hospital treasurer, and of Lawrence J. Morris, of West Chester, as secretary.

Evans, who served as treasurer for 21 years, was the fourth member of his family to have held the position He is succeeded by Minturn T. Wright, Jr., of Chestnut Hill. Morris, who was secretary for 26 years, is replaced by J. Somers Smith, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sears, of Williamsn Rd., Ardmore, will entertain at a dinner at the Merion Cricket Club, Friday evening, June 3, folowing the reherasal for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Prescott Sears, to Mr. Thomas L. Tibbetts, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Tibbetts, of Farmington, Conn, which will take place the folowing day.

Will An Accident Put the Finger on You?

950,000 people were killed or injured in automobile accidents in the United States last year. Pennsylvania's auto traffic death toll is 597 for the first four months of this year. This is an increase of 81.5% over the same period last year.

In spite of 50,000 fewer cars on Pennsylvania roads the death list is greater than in 1941. Every day the "finger of accident" points out a car here—three cars there to be added to the wrecks and mounting casualties of its victims.

What can you do about it? The answer is simple. Drive carefully. Keep your car in safe repair. Watch out for other drivers. Obey traffic laws.

Make a habit of these few common sense rules and reduce your chances of auto accident to a minimum.

You can be a safe driver if you will. It's up to you!
